Hi Marti

I don't have Craig's email to send him these latest pictures so if you could forward these to him I would appreciate it. I would send it over to your warranty department, but you know how far that goes...

I left Craig a voicemail today, Tue July 5th, to let him know Chris and I were looking at the side of the house and even though there isn't water coming in on the foundation at the side of the house, should the tough and dri insulation be pulling away from the house? there is anywhere from a 1/4 - 1" gap between where the insulation pulled away from our house and the tar against the cinder block. This runs the entire side of the house and perhaps the front of the house might be the same thing.

As you'll notice a lot more water is coming in and in different areas than before. Craig mentioned about the water running and following a path, when you look at some of these pictures I don't see any path, but I see a lot more water towards the bottom now, corners and front...

I told Craig also I am out of town from Tuesday July 19th through Thursday July 28th and won't be in Pittsburgh at all..
